RANGE CATTLE BEEF PRICES START DOWN

Here is a fine point in economics, a point that will interest the consumer, the housewife and, figuratively speaking, the man behind the house. Here is the point. The weather has a direct relation to the price of meat. There are two kinds of meat, generally speaking, stall fed and range. If the weather is dry, there is no range, consequently they must be fed in stalls on $12 a ton alfalfa, which affects the retail price when sold by butchers. If, however, it rains sufficiently to bring the grass forth from the ground and rains again to nourish the grass, the cattle fatten on nature's nutriment, as was intended in the ideal scheme of things, and cheaper meats result.

This has been the case in the southwest. The recent rains have made the ranges green with grass, the substance of which has gone into the bone and sinew of the grazing herds. Range cattle beef is offered at some of the markets at cheaper prices and probably in several weeks a general reduction will follow.

Case illustrating this economic principle is at hand in the alfalfa crop, which will fall short of the average yield by one cutting on account of the lack of moisture. Two cuttings the crop has already yielded and according to grain merchants, there will be but one more. The average yield is four cuttings.

LIMES TAKE PRECEDENCE OVER LEMONS AT LOCAL THIRST QUENCHING PARLORS

Mexico the Home of the Fruit; The Imports From Guadalajara Large.

The lemon has proved a lemon. The modest little fruit, product of an alien soil and not a third as large as its yellow brother, has landed the lemon a knockout that has sent the yellow fruit through the ropes for the count. No longer does a thirst-wedged El Pasoan stagger up to a soda fountain for the extra pale equivalent and shout in a throat parched voice, "gimme a lemonade." Not for your uncle El Paso he marches up to the bar—beg pardon—soda counter, and glibly asks for a limeade with plenty of ice in it.

Imported from Mexico in baskets, bales, and more baskets, the little lime, supreme in its possession of the flavor, has taken El Paso by storm. One soda fountain manager says he uses from 100 to 500 limes each day the year round to satisfy the appetite of his customers for the juice of the pale green fruit. The customs records show that 18,280 pounds of limes were shipped through this port from Mexico during the fiscal year closing June 30. Each pound of limes will contain at least 20 of the little thirst-satisfiers, making a grand total of 365,600 limes that were imported during the past fiscal year with 600 over for the fourth of July.

Ways of Serving.

The limeade industry is not the only way the successful rival of the lemon is served. Lime freezes, cold as their name and with a little parls green effect for coloring are sold, clear and meade, more expensive and more dignified than the little brother, lime sherbert, is the real aristocrat of the lime family. Many other mixtures are served at the soda fountains with the lime as the base. At the bars there are many other concoctions which are prepared with the able assistance of the little lime. But this is to be a strict temperance discourse.

Guadalajara is the acknowledged home of the lime. It is a wild in many parts of the republic and is to be found in great quantities around Vera Cruz and other parts of the warm country. But Guadalajara is where the growing of the lime is an industry of itself. The Indians have long been known to have a hat full of the pucky little fruit would bring a "centave" gold from the tourists and members of the American colony. Others have discovered a more lucrative way of disposing of the limes. They are used as a base for made grass baskets, carted or carried to the nearest express station and shipped to the states where they bring a fancy price and 100 percent on the investment less the cost of the baskets.

Lime Baskets Are Popular

That introduces the by product of the lime importing business, the lime basket. As popular as the limes are for making a cooling, thirst quenching summer drink, the lime basket has proved even more popular with El Paso housewives in a half dozen different ways. Lunch is also packed for the school children and for the man away from home for the day in the lime basket. For these and other uses, the El Paso importers and consumers of limes sell the lime baskets for 25 cents each, making a neat little by product profit by the transaction.

The price paid for the limes in Mexico is 55 cents per 100 at the present time. The duty, when a kind and benevolent government assesses on each pound of the fruit, is one cent American money. The invoiced price of the imported limes is given as $1 for 16 pounds. One lime when it is squeezed in a thin glass, a little simple syrup, carbonated water and some shaved ice added, retails for five cents at any of the local fountains. Two limes and a double quantity of syrup, water and ice will double this income and the fancy drinks made of the Mexican fruit bring even better prices.

Mexico Supplies Local Market

The entire local market is supplied from Mexico, the greater quantity coming from near Guadalajara, Florida and California also grow limes for the trade, but when compared to the Mexican article they taste like so much perfume in the local dealers' say.

As the king of the thirst quenchers and palate ticklers, the Mexican lime has usurped the place once held by the more dignified lemon, the fruit that got in bad because of a slang phrase to the effect that it was the sign of all things—false. Limes are shipped to all parts of the country from El Paso, making a profitable side line for the commission houses.

A NEW FACE IN TOWN.

There is a new face in town. It belongs to the electric equivalent of the old fashioned town clock, which is being placed on top of the City National bank building. The framework for the big clock, which has a diameter of more than six feet, has been built and the dial was set Thursday morning. The clock proper will be set Saturday and the hands started on their 24 hour shift around the big dial. It will have the illuminated face and it will tell the time of day or night.

S.S.S. CURES OLD SORES

S. S. S. cures Old Sores in the very simplest way. It just goes into the circulation and removes the poisons and impurities which are keeping the place open. Then the sore or ulcer heals because the infected flesh tissues receive nourishment and healing properties from the blood, instead of irritating, disease-laden germs. Every symptom of an old sore suggests diseased blood. The inflammation, discharge, discolored flesh around the ulcer, and the fact that it resists every form of local treatment, and even returns after being removed by surgical operation, indicates to what a great extent the blood is polluted. S. S. S. removes every trace of poison or infectious matter from the circulation and makes the bloodstream pure, rich and healthy. S. S. S. reaches hereditary taints, and those who are suffering from an old sore, which came without any apparent cause, could do better than better take a course of this great blood medicine to remove the inherited taint. S. S. S. cures old sores for the one simple reason that it purifies the blood. Book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice free to all who write.
